ROCKY MOUNTAIN HEALTH PLANS EXPANDS BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Anne Warhover, Diane Schwenke, and Jay Want, M.D. Join Board

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. – Rocky Mountain Health Plans has appointed Anne Warhover, Diane Schwenke, and Jay Want, M.D. to the Board of Directors.

“The addition of Anne, Diane, and Jay ensures Rocky Mountain will continue to benefit from a diversity of knowledge and opinions. All three are strong leaders with exceptional background and skills in business and health care,” said Steve ErkenBrack, President and CEO of Rocky Mountain Health Plans. “They will add a new dimension and additional insight to our board discussions as we strive to make high quality health care more affordable and accessible.”

As President and CEO of the Colorado Health Foundation, Warhover guides the organization’s strategic direction and oversees more than 100 employees in their efforts to make Colorado the nation’s healthiest state. Since 2004, Warhover has been instrumental in working with the Foundation’s Board to focus the organization’s efforts on three outcomes: encouraging healthy living; increasing the number of Coloradans with health insurance; and ensuring they have access to cost-effective, quality, coordinated care. She also manages the Foundation’s ownership interest in Denver's HealthONE hospital system.

Schwenke has served as President and CEO of the Grand Junction Chamber of Commerce for more than 20 years. She is responsible for developing and executing the organization’s long-term growth strategies that benefit the 1,000 member businesses and implementing a robust annual business plan that includes economic development, community development, and public policy. Her leadership has made the Grand Junction Area Chamber the definitive voice for local business at all levels of government.
